Introduction

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

- "As background, UIFSA is one of numerous uniform acts drafted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in the United States. 'UIFSA, which has been adopted by all states, including Connecticut, governs the procedures for establishing, enforcing and modifying child and spousal support, or alimony, orders, as well as for determining parentage when more than one state is involved in such proceedings.' (Footnote added; footnote omitted.) Hornblower v. Hornblower, supra, 151 Conn. App. at 333, 94 A.3d 1218; see also General Statutes § 46b-301 et seq.; Studer v. Studer, 320 Conn. 483, 487, 131 A.3d 240 (2016)." Olson v. Olson, 214 Conn. App. 4, 12-13, 279 A.3d 230, cert. denied, 345 Conn. 916 (2022).
- "The purpose of General Statutes 46b-70 et seq. is to enforce matrimonial judgments in order to achieve a uniformity of law, without having that purpose frustrated by the courts. See Walzer v. Walzer, 173 Conn. 62, 376 A.2d 414 (1977). A mobile interstate populace is a societal fact of life in every state. Stability in the status of children as beneficiaries of support agreements should be preserved when consistent with the varying laws of our states." Van Wagner v. Van Wagner, 1 Conn. App. 578, 582-583, 474 A.2d 110 (1984).
- Comity: "We begin our analysis with a review of the doctrine of comity applied by the trial court. '[C]omity is a flexible doctrine, the application of which rests in the discretion of the state where enforcement of a foreign order is sought.' Walzer v. Walzer, 173 Conn. 62, 70, 376 A.2d 414 (1977). The doctrine traces its roots to the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U.S. 113, 16 S. Ct. 139, 40 L. Ed. 95 (1895), which observed that "[c]omity," in the legal sense, is neither a matter of absolute obligation, on the one hand, nor of mere courtesy and good will, upon the other. But it is the recognition which one nation allows within its territory to the legislative, executive or judicial acts of another nation, having due regard both to international duty and convenience, and to the rights of its own citizens or of other persons who are under the protection of its laws.' Id., at 163-64. '[W]here there has been opportunity for a full and fair trial abroad before a court of competent jurisdiction, conducting the trial upon regular proceedings, after due citation or voluntary appearance of the defendant, and under a system of jurisprudence likely to secure an impartial administration of justice between the citizens of its own country and those of other countries, and there is nothing to show either prejudice in the court, or in the system of laws under which it was sitting, or fraud in procuring the judgment, or any other special reason why the comity of this nation should not allow it full effect, the merits of the case should not, in an action brought in this country upon the judgment, be tried afresh, as on a new trial or an appeal, upon the mere assertion of the party that the judgment was erroneous in law or in fact.' Id., at 202-203." Zitkene v. Zitkus, 140 Conn. App. 856, 865, 60 A.3d 322 (2013).

Section 1: Foreign Support Judgments in Connecticut under UIFSA

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:

Bibliographic resources relating to the filing and enforcement in Connecticut of matrimonial judgments from other jurisdictions under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA), effective July 1, 2015. Some of the case law cited may discuss previous versions of UIFSA.

SEE ALSO:

- Foreign Matrimonial Judgments in Connecticut under RURESA (Section 2)

DEFINITIONS:

- UIFSA Definitions: Conn. Gen. Stat. § 46b-302 (2025)
- Remedies cumulative. "(a) Remedies provided by sections 46b-301 to 46b-425, inclusive, are cumulative and do not affect the availability of remedies under other law or the recognition of a foreign support order on the basis of comity.
(b) Sections 46b-301 to 46b-425, inclusive, do not (1) provide the exclusive method of establishing or enforcing a support order under the law of this state; or (2) grant a tribunal of this state jurisdiction to render judgment or issue an order relating to child custody or visitation in a proceeding under sections 46b-301 to 46b-425, inclusive." Conn. Gen. Stat. § 46b-304 (2025)
- Registration of Support Orders: "A support order or income-withholding order issued in another state or a foreign support order may be registered in this state for enforcement." Conn. Gen. Stat. § 46b-370 (2025)

- Olson v. Olson, 214 Conn. App. 4, 279 A.3d 230, 13–14, cert denied, 345 Conn. 916 (2022). "...it is clear that, although Connecticut courts do not have subject matter jurisdiction over a spousal support order issued by a court of another state or a foreign country having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over that order, a Connecticut court does have subject matter jurisdiction to modify a spousal support order issued in another state or a foreign country if that state or foreign country does not, by the terms of its laws, maintain continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over the spousal support order at issue. Accordingly, we must determine whether the United Kingdom, under its laws, has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to modify the spousal support order in question."
- Dillon v. Scholz, No. FSTFA094017502S, Superior Court, Judicial District of Stamford-Norwalk at Stamford (Jan. 10, 2019) (2019 WL 423177). "In view of the fact that the parties and the child no longer reside in Connecticut, however, this court will not have continuing exclusive jurisdiction under UIFSA unless 'the parties consent in a record or in open court that the tribunal of this state may continue to exercise jurisdiction to modify its order.' General Statutes § 46b-315(a)(2). In addition, nothing in this order shall preclude either party from registering the Connecticut dissolution judgment in the state in which he or she is currently residing."
- Studer v. Studer, 320 Conn. 483, 491-492, 131 A.3d 240 (2016). "Our examination of the plain language of the statute and related statutes indicates that § 46b-213q (d) vests the first state to issue a child support order with control over the duration of the child support obligation, notwithstanding any subsequent modifications of the child support order by a tribunal of another state. Furthermore, our review of the case law of other states that have enacted or considered analogous statutes also supports this understanding. Accordingly, because it is undisputed that the Florida judgment was rendered before any of the Connecticut orders, the initial controlling order in the present case is the Florida judgment and, therefore, Florida law governs the duration of the defendant's child support obligation."
- Testa v. Geressy, 286 Conn. 291, 310-311, 943 A.2d 1075, 1086-1087 (2008). "We conclude that the unambiguous text of both §§ 46b-212t (a) and 46b-231 (t) (2) gives the state express statutory authority to provide legal services on behalf of support enforcement services in assisting the defendant in this action. Indeed, our conclusion is buttressed by the relevant state regulations, as § 17b-179(m)-10 (b) of the Regulations of Connecticut State Agencies provides in relevant part: 'When Connecticut is the responding state, [support enforcement division, now known as support enforcement services] shall: (1) serve as the support enforcement agency under [the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act] and provide any necessary services within the applicable timeframes for the given services which shall include paternity and support obligation establishment, in conjunction with the [attorney general's office], enforcement of court orders, and collection and monitoring of support payments' (Emphasis added.)."

DEFINITIONS:

- “. . . ‘foreign matrimonial judgment’ means any judgment, decree or order of a court of any state in the United States in an action for divorce, legal separation, annulment or dissolution of marriage, for the custody, care, education, visitation, maintenance or support of children or for alimony, support or the disposition of property of the parties to an existing or terminated marriage, in which both parties have entered an appearance.” Conn. - [Gershon v. See id. Subsection (b) of § 46b-71 codifies the conflict of law rules governing a foreign matrimonial judgment registered in this state and provides in relevant part that such a judgment ‘shall have the same effect and may be enforced or satisfied in the same manner as any like judgment of a court of this state and is subject to the same procedures for modifying, altering, amending, vacating, setting aside, staying or suspending said judgment as a judgment of a court of this state; provided, in modifying, altering, amending, setting aside, vacating, staying or suspending any such foreign matrimonial judgment in this state the substantive law of the foreign jurisdiction shall be controlling.’ The plaintiff’s motion to open and set aside the judgment is governed by New York substantive law and Connecticut procedural law.”

so constitutes plain error.’ Vitale v. Krieger, 47 Conn. App. 146, 149, 702 A.2d 148 (1997) (citing Colby v. Colby, 33 Conn. App. 417, 421, 635 A.2d 1241 (1994)).”

“Superior Court judges that have considered this issue have found that child support guidelines are substantive in nature, and, therefore, the guidelines of the foreign jurisdiction must be applied. See, e.g., McGrane v. McGrane, Superior Court, judicial district of Hartford, No. HHD-FA-18-4087052-S (Sept. 17, 2018, Nguyen-O'Dowd, J. (child support guidelines are substantive and not procedural in nature); *Symolon v. LEXIS 1160) (child support guidelines are substantive in nature, and thus child support guidelines of foreign jurisdiction apply to motion to modify child support); Bonthu v. Bonthu, Superior Court, judicial district of New London at Norwich, Docket No. FA-06-4104170 (April 4, 2007, Sweinton, J.) (43 Conn. L. Rptr. 230, 2007 Conn. Super. - Barber v. Barber, 193 Conn. App. 190, 219 A.3d 378 (2019). “On ‘February 5, 2015, pursuant to General Statutes § 46b-71, the defendant registered the New York judgment of dissolution in the Superior Court.’ (p. 194)

‘The law of judgments ... is well settled. The construction of a judgment is a question of law with the determinative factor being the intent of the court as gathered from all parts of the judgment.... As a general rule, the court should construe [a] judgment as it would construe any document or written contract in evidence before it.... Effect must be given to that which is clearly implied as well as to that which is expressed.... If faced with ... an ambiguity, we construe the court's decision to support, rather than to undermine, its judgment.... The judgment should admit of a consistent construction as a whole.... To determine the meaning of a judgment, we must ascertain the intent of the court from the language used and, if necessary, the surrounding circumstances....’ (Citations omitted; internal quotation marks omitted.) Rogan v. Rungee, 165 Conn. App. 209, 223, 140 A.3d 979 (2016).” (p. 200-201)

- Baughner v. Baughner, 63 Conn. App. 59, 61, 774 A.2d 1089, 1090-1091 (2001). "There ensued a flurry of litigation in New York that ended when the New York court decided that, although it had continuing jurisdiction, it would decline to exercise that jurisdiction if the parties filed an appropriate action in Connecticut, where the parties were then residing or planning to reside."
- Lindo v. Lindo, 48 Conn. App. 645, 649-50, 710 A.2d 1387, 1390 (1998). "When modifying a foreign matrimonial judgment, a Connecticut court must apply the substantive law of the foreign jurisdiction. General Statutes § 46b-71 (b). Under the particular circumstances of this matter, however, whether the Michigan judgment is a 'foreign matrimonial judgment' that may be modified by a Connecticut court depends on whether it falls within the purview of § 46b-70. It is clear that the defendant never filed an appearance in the proceedings leading to the February 24, 1986 judgment modifying the New York decree. The defendant argues, however, that his appearances in the Michigan court, subsequent to its February 24, 1986 modification order, are sufficient, as a matter of law, to satisfy the requirements of § 46b-70. We do not agree."
- Colby v. Colby, 33 Conn. App. 417, 421, 635 A.2d 1241 (1994). "While this court has the authority to determine jurisdiction; . . . we are unable to determine from the record whether the plaintiff here ever filed an appearance in the divorce proceedings in accordance with the Massachusetts rules of civil procedure. The threshold requirement for enforcement of the foreign matrimonial judgment not having been satisfied leaves unresolved the question of the jurisdiction of the trial court. This court is not in a position to hold a hearing to determine this fact and thus remands the case to the trial court for a hearing to determine whether the threshold issue has been met."
- Mirabal v. Mirabal, 30 Conn. App. 821, 825-826, 622 A.2d 1037 (1993). "General Statutes § 46b-71(b) consigns to the courts of this state the power to enforce, satisfy, modify, alter, amend vacate, set aside or suspend a foreign matrimonial judgment that has been properly filed in a Connecticut court. This subject-matter jurisdiction is circumscribed, however, by General Statutes § 46b-70, which defines a foreign matrimonial judgment as 'any judgment, decree or order of a court of any state in the United States in an action for ... divorce ... or dissolution of marriage, for the custody ... or support of children ... in which both parties have entered an appearance.' (Emphasis added.) The requirement of the entry of an appearance by both parties is a 'threshold requirement for enforcement' of a foreign matrimonial judgment. Morabito v. Wachsmann, 191 Conn. 92, 101, 463 A.2d 593 (1983). The language of § 46b-70 differs from that of other uniform enforcement of judgment acts; it 'reflects the intent of the legislature to ensure that both parties have actual notice of an out-of-state proceeding, and to preclude adoption of foreign judgments obtained by a default in appearance.' Rule v. Rule, 6 Conn.App. 541, 544, 506 A.2d 1061, cert. denied, 201 Conn. 801, 513 A.2d 697 (1986); Morabito v. Wachsmann, supra, 191 Conn. at 101 n. 9, 463 A.2d 593. A trial court has no competency to exercise power over an out-of-state matrimonial judgment that does not satisfy the requirements of § 46b-70."

- Rule v. Rule, 6 Conn. App. 541, 545, 506 A.2d 1061 (1986). "The purpose of General Statutes § 46b-70 and § 46b-71 is to prevent a defendant from avoiding the execution of a valid and enforceable judgment by fleeing the jurisdiction."

Enforcement of child custody determination.

"A court of this state shall recognize and enforce, but not modify except in accordance with section 46b-115m, a child custody determination of a court of another state if (1) the court of the other state exercised jurisdiction under a provision substantially similar to section 46b-115k, 46b-115l or 46b-115m, the determination was made under factual circumstances meeting the jurisdictional standards of this chapter and the determination has not been modified in accordance with this chapter, or (2) the child custody determination was registered in this state pursuant to section 46b-115w. A child custody determination which satisfies the criteria in subdivision (1) or (2) of this section shall have the same effect and shall be enforced in the same manner as a child custody determination rendered by the Superior Court."
