PRESS ADVISORY:

Judicial Branch Website Now Offers Case Inquiry for Supreme and Appellate Court Cases

Members of the public now have the opportunity to view case information for Supreme and Appellate Court cases filed after Jan. 1, 1991, through the Judicial Branch's website, <http://appellateinquiry.jud.ct.gov>.

The website provides access to appellate case information including such items as: case status, trial court case information, names of the attorneys and parties, transcript and exhibit information, the due date of briefs, as well as information about motion, order and transfer activity.

"This is an important addition to the Judicial Branch's website that will enhance access to the courts under the Branch's strategic plan and better serve increasingly tech savvy members of the bar and public," Chief Justice Chase T. Rogers said. "We have been working on this initiative for some time, and I am particularly grateful to Justice Peter T. Zarella for his leadership on this project."

Cases may be searched by case name, docket number, party name, attorney or self-represented party, or trial court docket number. Enhancements to this feature will be ongoing.
