
The “officially released” date that appears near the beginning of each opinion is the date the opinion will be published in the Connecticut Law Journal or the date it was released as a slip opinion. The operative date for the beginning of all time periods for filing postopinion motions and petitions for certification is the “officially released” date appearing in the opinion. In no event will any such motions be accepted before the “officially released” date.

All opinions are subject to modification and technical correction prior to official publication in the Connecticut Reports and Connecticut Appellate Reports. In the event of discrepancies between the electronic version of an opinion and the print version appearing in the Connecticut Law Journal and subsequently in the Connecticut Reports or Connecticut Appellate Reports, the latest print version is to be considered authoritative.

LAVINE, J., concurring. I concur that the failure to file a timely appeal from the finding and award of the workers' compensation commissioner (commissioner) to the workers' compensation review board (board) does not deprive the board of jurisdiction. That question of whether a late appeal from the commissioner was void or merely voidable was decided by our Supreme Court more than eighty years ago in Murphy v. Elms Hotel, 104 Conn. 351, 353, 133 A. 106 (1926), and affirmed under the current form of the statute in Matey v. Estate of Dember, 256 Conn. 456, 744 A.2d 113 (2001).
